Life of St. Macrina

Saint Macrina was born about 330 A.D. and died about 379. She was the eldest of ten children in a family of saints. Her brother, St. Basil, is revered as a Doctor of the Church. She received an excellent intellectual training, although it was based more on the study of the Holy Scriptures than on the classics. In the custom of the day, her father arranged a marriage for her when she was but twelve years old. However, her affianced husband died suddenly, and Macrina resolved to devote her life to perpetual virginity and the pursuit of Christian perfection. She exercised great influence over the religious training of her younger brothers. It was through her that her brother Gregory received the greatest intellectual stimulation. The great St. Basil owed much to his sister, who also guided him through the trying days after he had returned from the University where he had won many distinctions for his oratory and learning, and which were the cause of much pride.

So well did Macrina influence Basil in the spiritual life, that it was Basil who, upon the death of their father, took Macrina and her mother to a family estate on the River Iris in Pontus, Asia Minor. Here with their servants and other companions they led a life of retirement, consecrating themselves to God. Prayer, fasting, almsdeeds were the order of the day. All lived in a spirit of detachment from worldly goods. St. Gregory of Nyssa describes their way of life: Continence was their luxury, obscurity their glory, poverty their wealth. The little community under Macrina's leadership grew and ministered to the poor, the hungry and the neglected. Stories are told of miraculous cures obtained through the intercession of Macrina, even in her lifetime.

Macrina's life of prayer, fasting and self-sacrifice led to an early death. However her spirit of prayer, love for the neighbor, and sacrifice continues to live in her followers, the Sisters of the Order of St. Basil the Great.

SENIOR MEMORIES

OUR BENEFACTORS

Healthier, Holier, Happier Youth

In this the Tenth Anniversary Year of the establishment of Mount St. Macrina Academy we, the students and alumnae, wish to share with you the memories of our school days. We want to show you how our Alma Mater has endeavored to make of us healthier, holier and happier youth so that as adults we might bring Christ to His world, to His children, our brothers and sisters.

In her curriculum, Mount St. Macrina provides for a continuous growth in mental and physical health through her academic subjects, guidance and physical education classes. She offers to students many opportunities of becoming holier through the religious activities. Even our daily duties are presented as a means of sanctification, so that study, rest and play contribute to the attainment of the goal of our student days. Consequently, if her students are healthy and physically healthy and spiritually attuned to the Heart of Christ, happiness, that true happiness, will be the attainment of each student.

We are grateful to Our Alma Mater for these many opportunities and treasured memories. And to those who have made Mount St. Macrina possible, we now pay tribute - to the devoted Sisters of St. Basil the Great, to our Parents and to the Benefactors. May Almighty God grant each a large share of good health, holiness and happiness.

We are grateful to His Excellency for his kind interest and deep concern for us. May God crown his every effort with holy success.

REV. MOTHER OLGA, O.S.B.M.
Provincial Superior

During our four years at the Mount, Reverend Mother Olga has been a friend and advisor to each student. At report card time, especially, did Mother encourage and spur us on. We are sincerely grateful to her for the kind interest and concern.

Our Faculty

There are master artists whose daily achievements in education oftentimes pass unnoticed. Daily these artists mold the characters of youth into a pattern of Christian example. Frequently their hands become soiled from the soft clay of discouragement, of inability to see the fruits of their efforts, but they cleanse their soiled hands with the cleansing solvent: patience and faith in Christian youth, and continue to shape and to mold. Striving sincerely they attempt to create worthy masterpieces for Almighty God. Indeed theirs is a great responsibility, a work deserving highest praise and recognition. We, the Seniors of 1958, set aside this page in honor of these artists, our FACULTY. Sincerely we thank you, our guides and inspiration.

History of Mount St. Macrina Academy

High school days are treasured memories, and so, too, is it with the girls of Mount St. Macrina Academy.

In 1947 twelve girls arrived at the Mount filled with wonder and excitement. They were our first students. Now ten years later we are a happy family of 75, carrying out the traditions and examples set forth by former faculty members and students.

The aim of our school . . . to prepare apostolic women for efficient service to God, to our Country, to our Church, and to society, has been instilled into every student. It was the aim of the late Reverend Mother Macrina and the Most Reverend Basil Takach, D.D., to provide a school for young Greek Catholic girls in order that they might show apostolic leadership among our own people.

Inconvenience, lack of comfort and other difficulties beset the school in its early years. However, through the generosity of our superiors, faculty members and benefactors, this school is growing and progressing.

At first, the new student to boarding school finds the customs and discipline strange, even hard. However, before the end of the first year, she notices in herself a change toward a more solid Christian maiden. Love of God, of His Mother and of our school instills into each maiden courage and hope for the future.

Along with our diligent application to study, we plan for many good times: our annual hayride, Halloween parties, the Valentine Dance and the crowning of Queen, and of course, the Junior-Senior Prom. Each year some event becomes a treasured memory, because of an unexpected and interesting incident. As an example, the time way back in '49 when Irene in Russian Class delivered a 3 minute speech. Its contents: "i ja spala, i spala, i spala." ("and I slept, and I slept, and I slept.") For three minutes these famous words were spoken.

Students of 1950-51 recall the plays, "Clue of the Red Ribbon," and the soph's "Dr. Kurall's Magic Oil." They remember the educational tour to Buhl Planetarium. The enrollment that year was nineteen.

The year 1951-52 brought with it 40 girls and something new . . . day-hops. Tree planting was a momentous occasion as was the arrival of our first television set. Students recall interesting displays of historical and vocational interest which they had to plan and set up.

The next year brought with it many firsts. The Drama Club was new, and the Christmas Radio Broadcast was a thrilling new experience. Our first prom in May. This year the enrollment at the Academy was 54.

The school year of 1953-54 was a happy one. As in previous years the hayride was looked forward to and afterwards long remembered. The opening of the new Academy Chapel, and the annual retreat are treasured memories of spiritual well-being. The prize winning float in the May Day Americanism Day parade increased the students' pride in their school. This year 55 girls studied and learned a better way of life here at the Academy.

The Pennsylvania Program, Sodality Reception and the Book Fair helped to make the 1954-55 year an interesting one. Sixty-seven girls were present this year. Extracurricular activities and scholastic achievements in "I Speak for Democracy" and the Handicapped Poster contests helped make that year a successful one.

A Chapter of the National Honor Society was formed in the 1955-56 school term, with thirteen charter members. The Alumnae Association was also organized. Fifty-eight girls endeavored to make this year a memorable one.

The 1956-57 school term brought with it many new experiences. Our Home Nursing classes were opportunities for fun as well as for learning. Music lessons on various instruments were also given. The classrooms and library took on a "new look." Students were privileged to meet Church dignitaries such as the new Bishop Stephen Kocisko of Pittsburgh, Bishop Gabriel Bukatko of Yugoslavia and Reverend Mother Zenobia, O.S.B.M., Superior General.

The 1957-58 school term is a memorable one. It is the tenth anniversary of this establishment. The students are benefiting from previous years of struggle and difficulty. In '49 there were three graduates and now in '58 there are twenty-one. Gratitude to Superiors, faculty members and benefactors for their continued generosity and kindness, for their firm guidance and help, fill the hearts of students and alumnae alike. May God grant abundant blessings and happiness to our Alma Mater. May it continue to grow and prosper for a firm foundation is laid.

In Gratitude to Mother Macrina

We're overflowing with gratitude
To our beloved Mother Macrina,
Who gave us hope and guidance,
And a school for Catholic youth.

Ten years have lapsed, forever,
But an indelible mark is left,
On the characters that were formed,
Through patience, love and prayer.

Dear Mother Macrina, our foundress,
We offer our prayers and thanks.
May you always intercede for us,
And the girls who'll take our place.

HEALTHIER YOUTH

Developing Wholesome Minds . . .

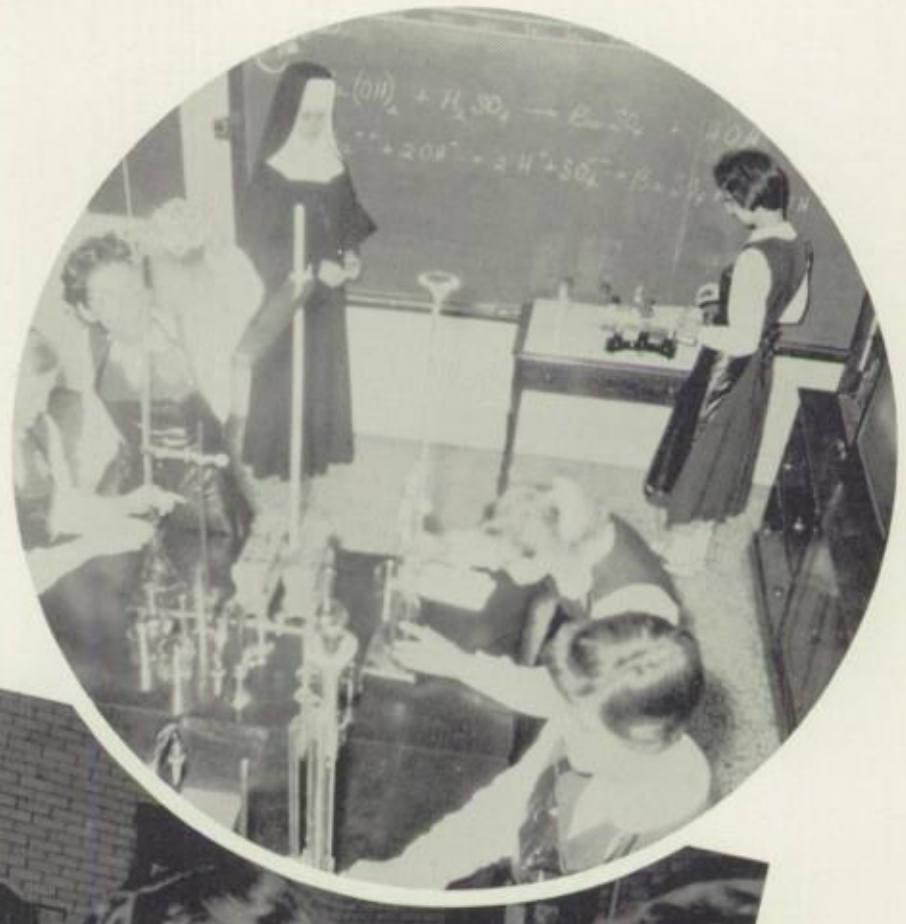
A small but smart French II class corrects their daily assignment with Sr. Bernadette. The six seniors are N. Medvig, J. Knafels, B. Marek, L. Franzczak, J. Krzton, and M. Lucas.

A familiar scene in an academites day is their study hall in the Library. Busy at study are: L. Franczyk, P. Lukasavage, N. Medvig, and C. Jacobson.

Scrapbooks can be fun to compile! This is proven by the Pennsylvania History class as they work on their project.

Math, Science, History, and Languages

Industrious chemistry students experiment with chemical reactions. Sister Vera guides the work of C. A. Macko, J. Petruska, M. Petruska, F. Cerul, and B. Sholtis.



Eager sophomores dissect amicable little animals in their biology class. In the foreground are: A. Thomas, C. Cenker, L. Suba, J. Smorada, and M. A. Kasarda.

x2 - 25 = hard work and fun for algebra students. This is proven by M. C. Timo as Sister Evangelista looks on.

Assets for a Better Business World

The Office Practice class tackles the confusion of filing as Sister Matthew checks for errors.

Writing shorthand from dictation is a skill which is displayed by: C. Jacobson, M. Lucas, M. A. Valint, and M. Benish as N. Medvig dictates.

Typing II students under the direction of Sister Matthew strove for accuracy and speed.

Spreading Truth for a Healthier World

Smiles are displayed by Poetry Contest Winners, C. Wozny, M. A. Shalansky, and N. Medvig.

The Echo Staff works earnestly to spread truth for the Catholic Press. Members of the staff are: N. Medvig, M. Makuch, copy readers; M. Ortutai, feature editor; S. Vanischak, C. Wozny, co-editors; B. Tuskan, business manager; P. Lukasavage, copy reader; C. Petrasovich and J. Blaszczak, typists.

Sister Evangelista, principal, presents awards to C. A. Macko and L. Franczyk for their winning handicapped essays; M. A. Petrunya fourth place winner of the Democracy contest, and M. A. Kozosky for the Homemaking Contest.

Teamwork Promotes a Healthier Spirit

Tension and anxiety prevails as N. Medvig and M. Hudock battle for the championship in the ping-pong tournament.

Uniontown citizens showed appreciation for the students marching and float entered in the annual Americanism Day Parade.

Calisthenics - a part of the gymnastic Review.

Miss O'Brien demonstrates that good food is necessary for good health to the seniors, M. Ortutai, M. Makuch, M. A. Kozosky, N. Medvig, M. A. Petrunya, and A. Majcher.

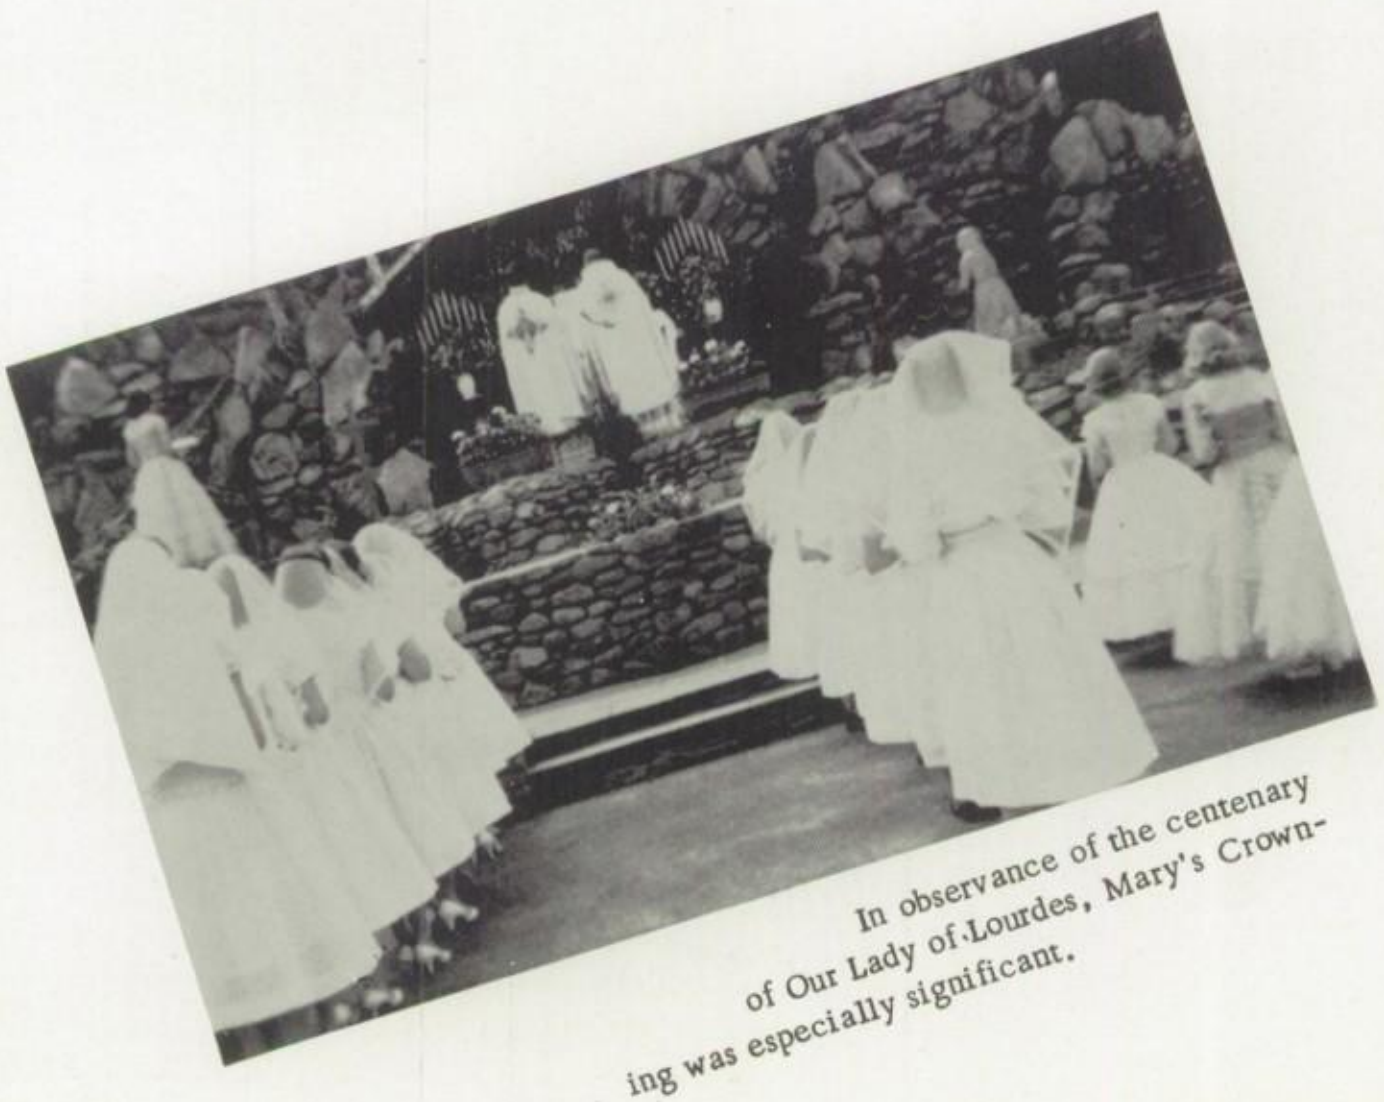
Christian Practices

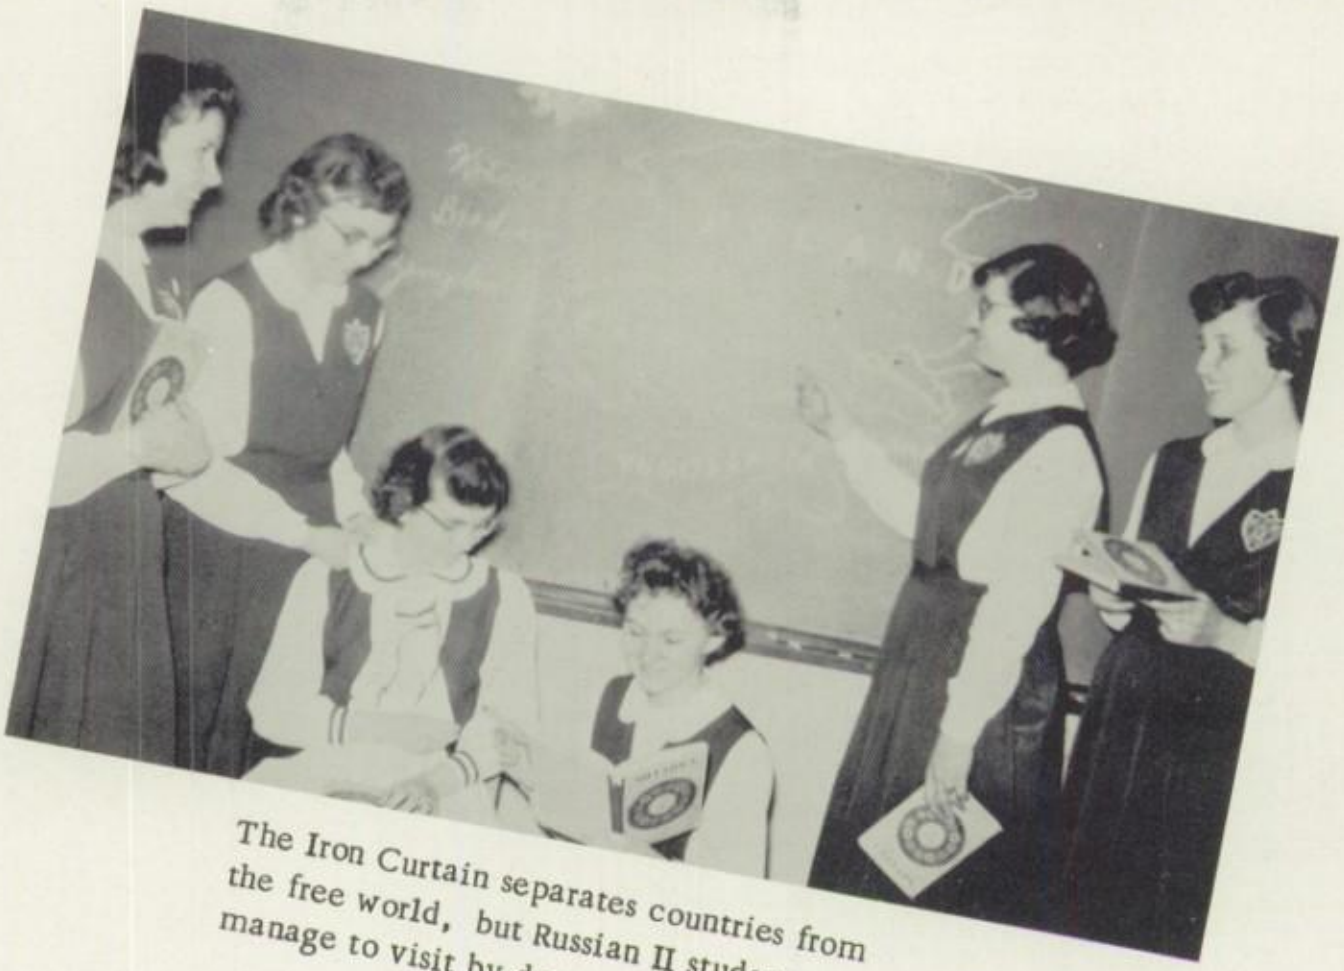
New Sodalists, M. A. Troyan, M. A. Kasarda, and F. Kuhta receive certificates from Father George Petro on reception day.

J. Midlik, A. M. Loncaric and M. A. Popp prepare basket for the poor.



In observance of the centenary of Our Lady of Lourdes, Mary's Crowning was especially significant.

and Principles of Living



The Iron Curtain separates countries from the free world, but Russian II students manage to visit by dress and literature.

As Sister Benedicta explains how to fill out income tax forms, Seniors find that money is scarce in P. O. D. class.

Seniors lost in thought - the guidance books say this - the future what?

Loyalty in Prayer

Seniors present crucifix at the blessing of the newly remodeled chapel.

N. Volpe, D. Krevinko, M. Moxie, and B. Bobak await their turns for reception of the Sacrament of Penance.

Retreatants steal away from their daily tasks to spend a few days in prayer and meditation.

Royalty in Deed

The "Crossroads of Destiny," must be met by everyone, and the Sodalists M. A. Petrunya, N. Medvig, B. Marek, M. Rugola, C. Jacobson, and P. Lukasavage help their fellow classmates towards a decision.

"May this ring which you have received this day be a symbol of the unselfish service which you will joyfully give to your school and your fellow man. May it by its endlessness, be a symbol of your striving for ETERNAL VALUES; by its blue color, be a symbol of your LOYALTY to the high ideals which Holy Mother Church instills in you at Mount St. Macrina; and by its gold, be a symbol of the ROYALTY which is yours as a CHILD OF GOD, and which should find its expression in your every action."

(From the School Ring Ceremony 1956)

Golden rings and golden memories of their Junior year are recalled by the Seniors.

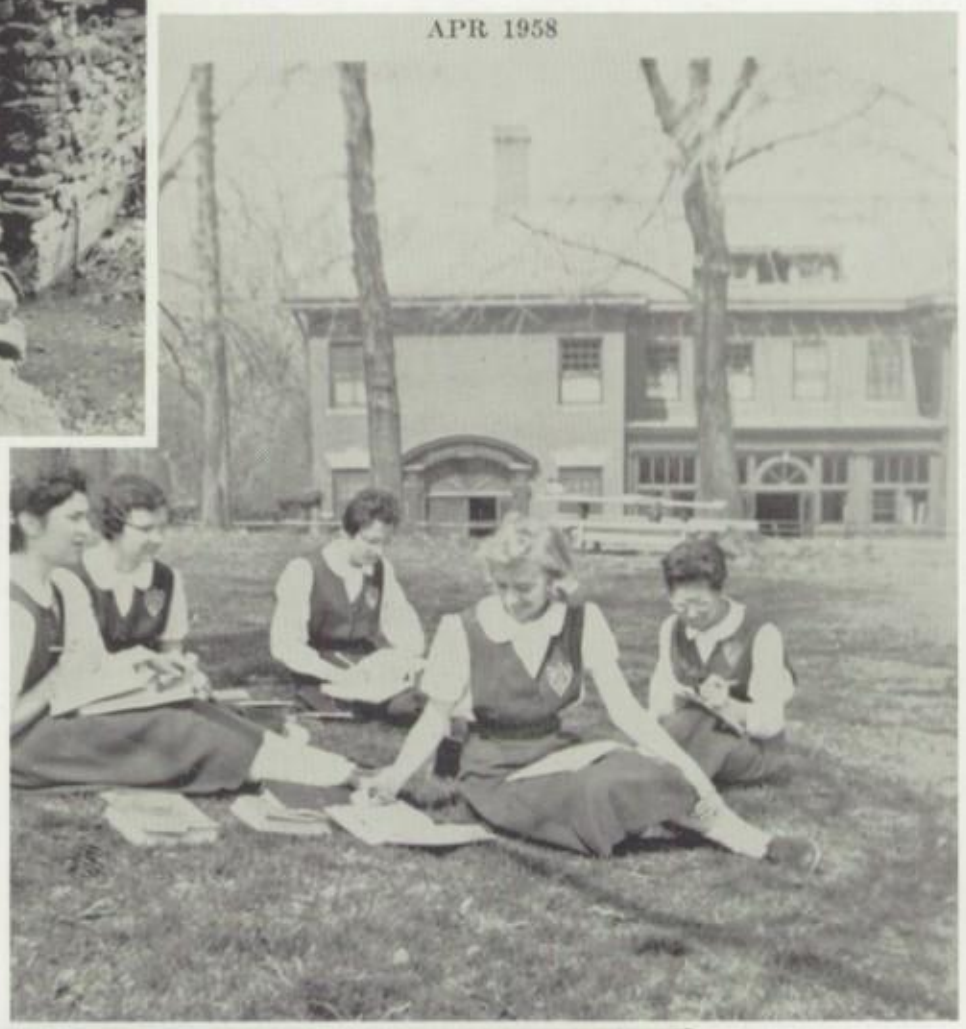
Students Find Happiness

Sketching scenery down the glen can be helpful and healthful. This is the popular argument of the Art I class when thoughts of staying indoors occur.



Study hall outdoors is tops with the Academites when spring comes, and M. A. Valint, M. A. Kozosky, M. Petruska, M. Lazarz, and J. Petruska look forward to them.

Class Night Program brings back memories of Seniors' First Grade School days.

in All Activities

Winter fun for everyone is proved by a group of Academites as they have a snowball battle during lunch period.

"You'd better watch out" calls P. Lukasavage to C. Jacobson, M. A. Kozosky and M. L. Tajc as the seniors enjoy an afternoon in the snow.

Is it dancing, or what is it? Looking back we find it was dancing to the latest tunes at a Sodality Sock Hop.

M. L. Tajc is crowned Queen of the Hop by M. Rugola as the seniors, her attendants, look on.

We Enjoy

"Who's winning?" M. Ortutai asks J. Petro, who is playing solitaire. M. Rugola, M. C. Timo and M. Smith are spending their Sunday afternoon reading.

Enjoying a few leisure moments in the dorm are C. Petrasovich, C. Jacobson, M. A. Shalansky, E. Starzetski, and M. Makuch.

L. Kosty entertains at the Valentine Hop with her impersonation of Minnie Pearl.

Working for Others

Along with many other Christmas activities, the Sophomores, A. M. Loncaric, J. Smorda, D. Krevinko, and C. Cenker help to make Christmas a bit happier by decorating for the ladies at the St. Basil's Home.

Preparing for a party is lots of fun and J. Petruska, B. Sholtis, M. Lazarz, J. Cutler, M. Petruska, and C. A. Macko enjoy it.

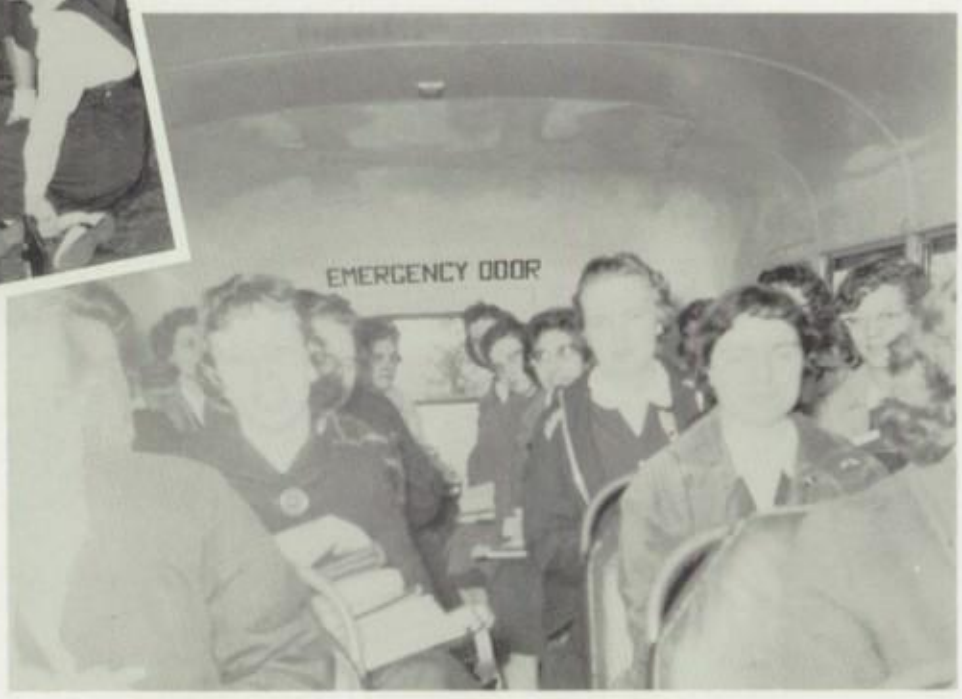
Fun, Laughs and Memories

One rainy afternoon found our dayhops, B. Bobak, J. Lazarz, F. Kuhta, M. Hudock, J. Marek, A. Majcher enjoying themselves in the parlor.



After a long day in school the day students depart for home on the 'ole school bus.

Surprise! A birthday party for Susan Bassala at which all the boarders had a wonderful time.

CLASS POEM

It seems as though it was just yesterday,

When we walked through these portals with a sigh.

So after four years of study and play,

We do now go forth with ideals high.

Classmates and underclassmen united

To the dear mem'ries we shall always keep.

To them we unceasingly confided,

"Loyalty in thought, Royalty in deed."

Though we are leaving our "Halls of Ivy,"

A part of our hearts will ever remain.

We won't forget all that made us happy

Nor our teachers who have been so benign.

Our days here are ended, and so to you,

Mount Macrina, we bid a fond adieu.

M. Makuch
C. Petrasovich

Most Rev. Stephen Kocisko, D.D., Dr. Michael Duda, Ph.D., commencement speaker, and Miss Patricia Lukasavage delivering the Salutatory.

Most Rev. Stephen Kocisko, D.D., Auxiliary Bishop of the Pittsburgh Byzantine Catholic Diocese and the Class of 1958.
